

Saturday night, we were stargazing at the meadow on W. Lakeshore, with the South Plains Astronomy Club sharing their smarts. They brought out about 6 telescopes so Ransom folks could experience the wonder of our skies. We saw the rings of Saturn & its moons, the bands around Jupiter & its moons, some nebula, constellations & shooting stars. The club will return August 31 at "dark:thirty". Come out and be amazed - bring your chairs & a filtered flashlight (red is best). Many thanks to our city folks who mowed & sprayed the meadow before the event and to RC resident, Steve Maas for connecting us with the club!
